

Jordan McGillis serves as the Deputy Director of Policy for the Institute for Energy Research

In his role, McGillis writes on energy policy and contributes to IER's communications initiatives.

McGillis graduated with a B.A. from the University of South Florida and an M.A. from Seton Hall University, both in International Affairs

Areas of expertise: Federal Lands (permitting, drilling rights, ect.), Carbon Tax & Climate Change, Free Market Theory